

Ernesto and Olga Fuentes have three sons and four grandchildren. Their oldest son, Abdiel, served 12 years in the United States Army and is now currently a pastor at New Day Christian Church in Port Charleston, Florida. Esly and Arely both work full time for WWHO.

Ernesto began as a missionary in 1968. Olga joined him in missionary work when they married in 1982. Ernesto started two Bible colleges in Mexico, the first one opened in 1974. From these two schools, Mexico now has more than 500 new pastors. He has written and published several books and Bible school curriculum for use in Christian education. For several years the Fuentes' expanded their ministry to overseeing 9 churches in Mexico, 2 churches in the United States, and 60 home churches in Cuba. Over the years God has opened many opportunities for Ernesto and Olga to preach and teach in Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala, and of course Mexico.

public, El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala, and of course Mexico.

In addition to the leading, teaching, preaching, and writing mentioned above, the Fuentes have also run a camp, clinic, community development program, and child sponsorship program. The Fuentes started their ministry in inner city of Saltillo and eventually expanded it throughout Mexico, the Caribbean, and in to the United States.

As with most missionaries, they never truly retire from doing God's work. Ernesto still travels throughout Mexico to do evangelistic teaching and preaching. Olga is the camp manager, and sometimes travels with Ernesto on evangelistic missions.
